Introduction.

A complete and accurate City Directory is one of the requirements of the age and an indispensable article to the business man. Nearly every city of 5,000 people or over in this broad land has come to consider this fact seriously and have them published every year or two. When properly compiled and arranged it contains not only the name, occupation and residence of each citizen, male or female, engaged in any kind of business or avocation, widow women, heads of families, persons engaged by others in any business, trade or calling, but it enumerates and locates each public institution, church, public office, society or organization, in fact contains all desirable and reliable information regarding the city for which it is published and its institutions which is of any value as a matter of reference to its inhabitants or for the guidance of strangers who may visit it. In presenting to the business men and denizens of Merrill this Directory for 1896-97 we have endeavored to give them not only a thoroughly reliable and accurate residence, business, society and church Directory, but have prepared a careful arrangement of facts and figures embodied in a brief history of the city. Commerce, manufacturing and agriculture, the three essentials to the production of a great, prosperous and substantial city, are in a most flourishing condition within Merrill's territory, and when to these are added a healthful climate and a population full of the refinement and culture of the East combined with the push and energy of the West, it requires neither prophet nor seer to foretell her coming greatness. Following this Introductory sketch will be found the brief history, and full information regarding the contents and arrangement of the remainder of the work.

Thanking one and all, both those who have patronized our work and those who so kindly assisted in our search after information, and trusting that it will meet the full needs and requirements of her citizens and business men, we are

Very respectfully,

The City of Merrill.

The city of Merrill, Lincoln county (of which it is the county seat,) is delightfully, and advantageously located on both banks of the Wisconsin and Prairie rivers, the Prairie river affording abundance of pure crystal water for the city water works, and the Wisconsin river, with a dam at the foot of Mill street affording one of the largest booms in the state.

The first settlement in the vicinity was made in the year 1844. There was no road reaching here then and owing to the denseness of the forest, the only mode of access was over the icy surface of the river during the winter months and by canoe during summer months. At that time Janesville was the nearest point where flour and provisions were procurable and the early settlers here were obliged to make this long and tedious journey for their supplies, it often taking three weeks to make the return trip.

The first sawmill in the vicinity was built and operated by Andrew Warren on the site now occupied by the T. B. Scott mills. The erection of this mill was commenced in 1846, and was not completed until 1849. The first logs were cut along the Prairie river in what is now the Seventh ward, the first logging camp was located exactly where A. C. Norway's house now stands. About this time the first railroad through this section was being talked of. It was termed the "Horicon" line, and was to run from Milwaukee via Horicon and Berlin through to Merrill, but was never built. In 1853 a road had been cut through from Wausau to Stevens Point and the following year one was cut from here to Wausau. During all this time the settlement was called, not Merrill, but Jenny Bull Falls. The first house was built by John Feeley and stood at the mouth of the Prairie river near where First street commences. The first store building was erected by Smith & Cooper and stood on the site of the T. B. Scott Lumber Co.'s warehouse, in this building they conducted a general store. The first hotel was built on what is now the northeast corner of Main and Poplar streets. This hotel was built by Cyrus Strobridge. He was first postmaster and had the office in his hotel, the mail being brought from Wausau on horseback.

In 1854 at a mass meeting the people organized the town of Jenny and voted $1,000 to build a new school house, which was built just back of the Lincoln House. This same school house was used also as a "meeting house" for many years.

It was not until 1874 that Lincoln county was organized and in 1881 the village of Jenny was incorporated as a city and named Merrill, after S. S. Merrill, at that time manager of the St. Paul road. From that time to the present the growth of Merrill has been steady and substantial until now it is a city of 10,000 inhabitants, our actual count giving 9,216, and as there are within the city a considerable floating population who have no permanent address the grand total easily reaches 10,000.

The number of men employed is not quite so great as it was owing to the burning of one of the large plants and the closing down of another, but there are still something more than 1,500 men employed in the various institutions.

The lumbering interests are conceded to be the very largest on the Wisconsin river, seven large saw mills being in operation, also several smaller ones devoted to the production of both hard and soft wood lumber and manufactured product of same, nine planing mills, three sash, door and blind factories, machine shops and iron works, flour mill, brewery, one of the largest in the northern part of the state, steam laundry, several cigar factories, hoop factory, electric street railway, excellent system of waterworks and sewage making it, withal, one of the most desirable residence and business centers in the great state of Wisconsin.

One finds here eleven fine church edifices, representing nearly every creed and shade of belief, six commodious public school buildings, besides several parochial schools, the T. B. Scott free library, thirty civic, secret and church societies, which all combines to make the social and educational facilities of Merrill, equal, if not surpass, many of her older sister cities. Three newspapers (two English and one German), six hotels and numerous boarding houses afford accommodation for an almost unlimited number of strangers.

Merrill has many handsome and substantial brick business blocks, conspicuous among which are the First National bank block, Heineman block, Champagne block, Opera House block, Willard block, Hankwitz block, City Hall, etc., also fine wide streets along which are seen an exceptional number of beautiful modern houses, surrounded by pleasing lawns and every convenience.

No young city in the north or west has a brighter future before it than has Merrill. All of which, together with its delightfully mild and salubrious climate at all seasons of the year fascinate every one who once visits Merrill, and it is needless to add that the fortunate domicilians of this beautiful and prosperous opolis of Wisconsin are justly proud of their home.

WE WANT

YOU . . .

To become familiar with the Merrill News. It tells all the news in a newsy manner. Its local columns are well filled with local happenings told in a straight-forward, interesting manner.

Advertisers find that an investment in its space sells goods. It reaches the best homes in the city and is eagerly read by both young and old. Advertising rates are low compared with results. Its ads when well written are money getters for pushing business people.

YOU NEED

PRINTING

At some time or other. The News office may not be better equipped for the work than any of its competitors but it is the equal of any plant in this vicinity. Every kind of commercial printing well done at rates the lowest consistent with good service. Estimates on work always cheerfully given.
