In conclusion we wish to thank the business men who have given their financial support to our book and we shall in the future aim to improve and be superior to this, we remain,

CITY OF MERRILL

In presenting this book to the public, we shall not dip into the future, but give a little of the past history of the city.

Merrill, the county seat of Lincoln county, is located in the famous Wisconsin Valley and is now the center of the finest agricultural section of Wisconsin. The place was known as the village of Jenny until 1881, when the name was changed to Merrill, in honor of S. S. Merrill, then president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. It is from that day that the now prosperous and beautiful city of Merrill can be said to date its existence. In that year the Merrill Boom company was organized. The saw mills on the west side were built and a new impetus was given the village; since that day Merrill has been the principal lumber manufacturing city on the Wisconsin river. Four large saw mills are still in operation; two of the largest sash, door and blind factories in the state; two large box factories and five planing mills; one pail and tub factory; a broom handle factory; two excelsior factories; one veneer factory and a hub mill constitute the lumber manufacturing and wood working industries of the city.

The Grandfather Falls company has a large paper mill situated on the Prairie river, which derives electric power from one of the best water falls in the state, located at Grandfather Falls, about fourteen miles from Merrill on the Wisconsin river. A large pulp mill is also in operation the entire year, being run by water power.

The American Hide & Leather company operates a large tannery, giving employment to many hands and also affording a market for the farmers' bark. The Merrill Iron Works is a growing foundry and machine shop, and the roller flour mill is another valuable institution. Several blacksmith and wagon shops, as well as the many garages give employment to a good many skillful mechanics. Two knitting factories, two glove factories and a candy factory are among the latest additions to the city's business. The present population is about 10,000.

Electric street cars, up-to-date telephone and electric-lighting systems are among the public utilities. A new system of sewerage has been adopted and is under construction. A fine water works system, fire department, with a new motor-truck, free delivery of mail, and rural mail delivery in the surrounding country and every other feature that makes an American progressive city.

The city has three first-class hotels and two opera houses; a fine public library, together with our magnificent school system, affords more than ordinary education facilities for our young people. The Lutherans have two handsome parochial school buildings and the Catholics one, with first-class educational systems presided over by capable teachers.

Merrill is well supplied with churches, every denomination being represented. The Lutherans have five churches; the Presbyterians, two; the Methodists, two; Evangelical, one; Catholic, one; Episcopal, one; Congregational, one. The city has three first-class banks noted for their solidity: the Citizens' National bank, the German American State bank, and the Lincoln County bank. Three English and one German newspaper furnish the people the news of the day. Nearly all known secret societies are represented, the Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, Eagles, Moose, etc.

Merrill has several nice parks: the Stange Public park, with its beautiful lagoons and walks, where a music stand has been erected and where the Merrill Concert band and the St. John's Church band furnish weekly concerts to the citizens during the warm months of the year; and the Riverside park, nature's beauty spot.

A wide-awake Chamber of Commerce Association will furnish all information to prospective investors and manufacturers seeking a location.
