Introduction

In this directory we have endeavored to give the people of Merrill a complete and reliable City Directory with other information that will make it valuable as a reference book. Be sure to see the general index for a complete list of all information contained in this issue.

There are five sections to this directory. The Miscellaneous Department—containing general information concerning Merrill. The Buyers' Guide—containing the advertisements of leading manufacturing, business and professional interests of the city. The Alphabetical List of names of residents, business firms, and corporations. The Street and Avenue Guide with the names of the residents opposite their respective numbers, and the Classified Business Directory which lists according to the nature of its business. Every business in Merrill under its proper classification.

The information for this directory has been gathered by a personal call on every firm and resident in Merrill. A few mistakes are bound to occur in a directory that involves so large an amount of work, but we have spared no effort or expense to make the information complete and accurate and believe the mistakes are very few. We present our first edition of the Merrill City Directory confident that it will meet with the approval of every user.

HISTORY

The history of Merrill as a settlement begins in the year 1847, when Andrew Warren started the construction of a dam across the Wisconsin river at this point. Previous to that time but few names are associated with this locality; as active settlement dates from the construction of Warren's saw mill we make no note of them. In 1857 the "Horicon" railway scheme was projected, the road to run from Milwaukee via Horicon and Berlin through to Merrill. This scheme proved to be a fiasco; citizens of Merrill and farmers living along the proposed right-of-way had mortgaged their lands in the interest of the proposal and for many years the titles to these lands were affected.

The name of the settlement went through a number of transformations. The rapids on the site of which the dam was built had been at one time known as Bull's Falls, and were christened by Warren "Jenny Bull Falls", by which name the settlement also became known. Later this was changed to "Jenny Falls" and soon to "Jenny", the latter it bore until it became Merrill in 1881, pursuant to an act of the legislature, in honor of S. S. Merrill, then general manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R.

The first buildings to be built were a boarding house and barns, built in front of the present Citizens National Bank building. These were constructed of logs. The first frame building was erected in 1854 where D. B. Reinhart's business building now stands. The next frame building was erected near the site of the present Lincoln Hotel building.

With the advent of the railroad in the spring of 1880 the character of Merrill changed from a slow moving mill station to the status of a city. The Wisconsin Valley Railroad company put down the first tracks in the village and later became part of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system. The latter company still operates their trains through here daily, and puts The Hiawatha, one of their finest trains on the northwoods run.

The first council meeting was held March 13, 1883. The city hall was erected in 1888-1889 at a cost of $16,275. The year 1889 also has a significance in the history of Merrill, as it was that year a 30 year charter was granted to the Merrill Railway & Lighting company for the operation of street cars. The first street cars under this charter were put into operation in 1890, a unique fact in the city's history, since it gave Merrill the distinction of being one of the first cities in the world to install electric transportation.

Within the period 1883 to 1903, Merrill as we know it now was largely built. The courthouse went up in 1903, the business district took shape, civic buildings were constructed, and the population rose to the 7,000 mark.

The first telephone office in Merrill was built by the Wisconsin Telephone company in 1881 and service was started with 20 phones. In 1896 the citizens of Merrill organized a local phone exchange that continued to operate until 1910, when the company took over its 500 or so subscribers and rebuilt it in 1912. The city water works came in 1887.

In 1891 the T. B. Scott library was opened and in 1905 a movement was set on foot to get a new library building. After much negotiation a donation of $17,500 was secured from Andrew Carnegie and the present building was erected.

The city's first fire-fighting organization was a semi-organized group. In 1884 chemical apparatus was purchased and the West Side engine house was built. After the installation of the waterworks in 1887 the department was regularly organized as a volunteer department. In 1898 the entire department was put on a paid basis.

In 1892 the lumber industry reached its height. There were eight mills in operation and the total cut in that year was approximately 150,000,000 feet of lumber and 86,000,000 shingles.

NEWSPAPERS

Of Interest To You!

What Is A Community Without A

NEWSPAPER?

One is so used to the conveniences and the interest of the daily newspaper of one's own community that it is hard to appreciate the real importance of this influence and service in our daily life. The only way to awaken to the necessity of the local newspaper is to know the experience of living in a town that has no local paper.

The community without a progressive newspaper is dormant and dependent upon its neighboring towns, not only for news but for many of the daily needs of life that the stores in other towns advertise in their newspaper. The city with a progressive newspaper is a thriving place—self-supporting, interested in Town affairs as well as those of the rest of the world.

Such a city is Merrill with the MERRILL DAILY HERALD to awaken its civic consciousness and to supply it with the news of its people and its neighbors, and just as important, the news of its stores, for readers in this age are just as interested in advertising that's profitable for them to read, as they are in news.

Read the HERALD for news . . . advertise in the HERALD for results.

Street and Avenue Guide and Directory of Householders

In the following list the streets are arranged in alphabetical order. The number of each building on the street is given in numerical order and opposite the number the name of the occupant or householder. In all streets both sides of the streets are included in one list. The profession, business, etc., of individuals and firms are only given at the respective place of business in the alphabetical arrangement.

Numerical streets are compiled in with the named streets in their regular alphabetical order.

The symbol * following a householder's name indicates that we have received information during the canvass that the house is owned by some member of the family. No responsibility for errors can be or is assumed, however, by the publisher.
